Hello, I hope you're all doing well!

This day, forty-seven years ago, Douglas Blackledge was born.

Every moment I spent with him when I was younger are some of my most treasured memories. He was always a joy to be around, and although the time I spent with him was usually short, I enjoyed every minute of it. I see his work as Air Force Search and Rescue to be nothing short of heroic, and I believe him to be an inspiration for reasons such as that. He truly was the best uncle a kid could ask for.

In his memory I have created a birthday memorial piece in Blender and have attached to this email, featuring an HH-60G soaring to the pearly gates, gift in tow.

Sincerely,
Ian Blackledge
